List. Wait. Hope.

- Card demand never switches off, it moves between formats: Web2 marketplaces, tokenised cards, onchain gacha, thousands of local shops. Nothing connects them.
- A collector who lists a graded card at a fair price waits weeks. The only fast exit is selling under market.
- While it waits, the card earns nothing.

List once. Sell two ways.

- Your card is buyable at your price, and sits inside a gacha pack at the same time.
- A ripper keeps it: you get full price, instantly. A ripper takes cash instead: your card stays, and you get paid rent for waiting.
- The card never leaves your wallet. A Metaplex Core freeze plugin holds it, not us.
- This is the onchain version of the stake-to-earn layer inside NextRare, the gacha we already run.

List once. Get paid two ways.

- A typical cycle: pull a card worth $42, sell it back for $38. 86% of cards are sold back, so inventory recycles instead of shipping out.
- This marketplace: 2% on direct buys. On a cash-out the ripper gets 85%, the 15% gap is profit, split 50/50 with the sellers in that pack.

Validated in the West. Empty in SEA.

- Collector Crypt did ~$153M of gacha spend in Q1 2026. Courtyard went from $50k to ~$50M a month. Beezie has $170M+ cumulative GMV. All Western, online only, single brand.
- Southeast Asia is the fastest-growing TCG market, deep collector culture, dense card-shop networks, and no aggregated hybrid platform.
- Why Solana: non-custodial listings via Core plugins, one-transaction settlement, fees in cents so a $5 pack works, and every roll provable from the payment transaction.

One listing, both exits.

- Collector Crypt · Courtyard · Beezie · OpenGacha: buy their own players, hold their own inventory, one exit per listing, sellers earn nothing while they wait.
- Tensor · Magic Eden: fixed price only, idle listings earn nothing.
- Us: both exits on one listing, non-custodial, the waiting itself pays, and physical rails in SEA.

Distribution we already have.

- 1. Activate the 2,537 registered NextRare users against 256 paying: they become the first sellers and rippers on mainnet.
- 2. Penang flagship opens October 2026 with $300k+ of consignor inventory. The app is the shop's wallet, so every purchase onboards a user.
- 3. Partners: Speculate and CatchaCard live as white-label channels; Slabz and Discover Collectibles confirmed. Their inventory lists here, their users rip here.

Why us.

- KC Thee, CEO: helped scale Binance across Southeast Asia, P2P and futures. Advisor to Virtuals.
- John Koh, CTO: former ML engineer at Eligible (YC 2012), Bitcoin since 2011.
- Huey Lau, COO: built Discover Collectibles, 130+ merchants across SEA retail.
- Li Ho, engineering: built the NextRare app and shipped this marketplace in three days.
